GOSHOW TO SPEAK AT THE 2010 NATIONAL CONFERENCE FOR WOMEN IN CONSTRUCTION

New York, NY (Jan. 26, 2010) – Nancy Aber Goshow, Managing Partner of New York City based Goshow Architects LLP will be a speaker at the National Conference for Women in Construction's Leadership Conference on April 15 and 16 in New York City.

With more than 30 years of experience in architecture, landmark restoration, and sustainable design, Ms. Goshow champions creative collaboration and environmental stewardship as essential to the firm's approach to design excellence. Under Ms. Goshow's leadership, the firm's diverse team of 40 has grown into a premier full-service architectural firm dedicated to improving communities through implementing long-term, sustainable design solutions.

She will be a panelist during the "Own the Team" session for business owners seeking to examine the leadership skills and strategies needed to make a successful and sustainable firm.

The "Take the Lead" conference is targeted at construction and design industry company owners, executives and project managers to explore the leadership skills, experiences and strategies of industry leaders.

Goshow Architects is the largest woman-owned full service architectural firm in New York City. The firm is founded on the belief that architects have a social responsibility to design healthy and sustainable living and learning environments for all. Established in 1978, the 40-person practice is a leading expert of green design, particularly for the public sector including higher educational facilities and public K-12 schools.
